Policy Statement:

The following defines the requirements for holding Field Faculty status within the West Virginia Rural health Education Partnerships Program.

1. Must have faculty appointment with a University of West Virginia System school, WV state college system or an independent higher education institution;
2. actively participate and interact with campus-based faculty;
3. supervise students during rural rotations;
4. facilitate interdisciplinary training sessions by planning and preparing session materials, providing appropriate feedback during sessions and filling out appropriate student evaluation forms after sessions;
5. provide appropriate student evaluations to their respective schools;
6. participate in and/or provide assistance for student community service projects when appropriate;
7. participate in and/or supervise student research projects when appropriate;
8. attend consortium board meetings when possible; and
9. participate in and/or provide WVRHEP faculty development.

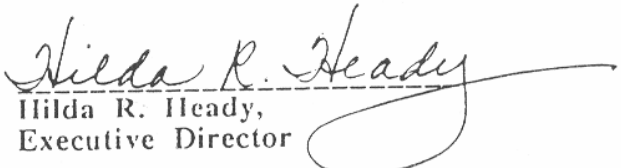

For providing the services described, field faculty may be reimbursed based on amount of time involved in educational activities at the sites.
